

05/05/09 - Westborough Wildlife Watch

Hello & welcome to Westborough Wildlife watch, I'm Keith & I can be found on plot 71 when I'm on site.

The aim of this blog is to record the diversity of life at Aldershot road & hopefully encourage more natural life to share our "second home".

April has been an interesting month with the sighting of a Wren possibly looking for a nesting site , the appearance of several 7 spot ladybirds (always welcome) & a few Speckled wood butterflies flying around plus the usual suspects Large & Small white butterflies, Crows & innumerable Pigeons, but what else ? have any other ploholders seen anything interesting, if so I'd like to hear about it, for instance has anyone seen our Green woodpecker or any Slow-worms or anything not previously mentioned if so come and talk to me on site or e-mail me through the website or just pass the message on via a third party, all additions will be published on the next blog .
